

E-Learning Overview

The Season 1: Foundations of Knowledge learning modules offer a concise primer on the truths and implications of the historical and contemporary relationship between Indigenous peoples and those who settled on their lands in Canada. It does this by providing the foundational knowledge on truth and reconciliation that nearly all Canadians missed during their education journey.

This learning is in direct response to the 94 Calls to Action from the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada, and the importance of educating all Canadians in workplaces and classrooms.

We each have a role to play in reconciliation by seeking to understand the truth, recognizing the impact of our shared history, and committing to moving forward with respect and empathy. Taking action towards understanding Indigenous perspectives promotes reconciliation. It creates land-based, justice, health, economic and environmental opportunities and builds partnerships between Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples. This is just a first step, and we encourage all participants to seek further learning opportunities with Indigenous peoples and organizations in your own region.

This course is aligned with anti-racism and diversity and inclusion objectives in the workplace.

It is intended to provide a bridge that facilitates direct learning relationships with Indigenous peoples as a result of this heightened awareness.

We encourage you to continue your learning journey with local First Nations, Métis, and Inuit people and organizations closest to you.

This learning is meant to enhance (not replace) local Indigenous knowledge.
